Strawberries

SENATOR DUNLAP. A mid-season variety. The Dunlap is now so well known among strawberry growers that it needs no introduction. Wherever strawberries are grown, fields of Dunlaps are a familiar sight. This variety has made more money for its growers throughout the United States than any other variety ever grown. It is impartial as to soil or climate and will produce large crops of fine fruit wherever planted. Berries are large, evenly shaped, rich crimson color, firm and of finest flavor. It has nearly all the good points that can be desired in a perfect berry. Plants are vigorous growers with long roots and sturdy crowns. You will make no mistake in planting Senator

Dunlap for main crop.

Price: 100—$0.75; 500—$2.50; 1,000—$5.00.

DR. BURRILL. Medium early. A new variety of the Dunlap type. Berries are larger than the Dunlap and the plants are more productive. The fruit is very large and uniform in shape and size. The color is a rich dark red and the flavor is simply delicious. Plants have long roots and are vigorous growers.

Price: 100—$0.75; 500—$2.50; 1,000—$5.00.

WARFIELD. Mid-season. This is one of the most productive varieties grown. Berries are medium to large, dark red color, very firm and one of the best canning berries grown. Plants are rampant runner makers and strong growers. Very hardy. Succeeds everywhere. Warfield is a pistillate variety and should be planted beside Dunlap or Dr. Burrill.

Price: 100—$0.75; 500—$2.50; 1,000—$5.00.

MICHAEL'S EARLY. Michael's Early is an old variety that has been among the early kinds for many years. Berries are light red and rather soft. It will not stand shipping well. The quality is fair. The flavor resembles that of the wild strawberry.

Price: 100—$0.50; 500—$1.25; 1,000—$2.50.

CHAMPION (The New Everbearing Strawberry)

This variety has been on the market for several years and has met with great favor among berry growers throughout the country. The fruit resembles that of the Dunlap and the flavor is equally as good. I believe it is a better variety than Progressive, although the Progressive is holding its own well. Personally I believe the Champion is more productive. The berries are larger and if I had my choice between the two, I would decide in favor of Champion.

Price: 100—$1.25; 500—$5.00; 1,000—$10.00.

SUPERB. The plants of this variety are fine thrifty growers, making many new plants the first season. If the runners are cut back somewhat, they will bear a good crop in the fall of the first year. The berries are large to very large and very regular in shape. They are bright glossy crimson and the prettiest and most attractive berries of all the kinds of fall-bearing strawberries. The flavor is somewhat inferior to most other varieties. On account of their size and very fine appearance, they are a splendid market berry and a good shipper. Price: 100—$1.25; 500—$5.00; 1,000—$10.00.

PROGRESSIVE (Everbearing). The Progressive is as extensively grown among the everbearers, as the Dunlap among the standard varieties. It is a good producer of medium to large sized berries that are sweet and delicious in flavor. They will bear a sure crop of berries ninety days after plants are set and continue to fruit until all vegetation is frozen in the fall. Plants have powerful roots and heavy crowns.

Price: 100—$1.25; 500—$5.00; 1,000—$10.00.

EVERBEARING STRAWBERRIES

On account of the long fruiting season of the everbearers, they should be supplied with an abundance of plant food to insure the production of large berries. They also require plenty of moisture, but should not be planted on poorly drained land. Plant them early and remove all blossoms until July 15th, after which let them fruit to full capacity. For best results they should be grown in the hill system.

NOTE:—If your order amounts to 3,000 or more plants of any one variety, write for special prices, naming varieties wanted.

Everbearing Red Raspberry

ST. REGIS (Everbearing Red Raspberry). This is the leader and most popular of the everbearing red raspberries. They produce a crop earlier than any other red raspberry. The early crop being produced on the old canes, while another crop is produced on the young canes later in the season. They will continue to bear on the young canes until frost kills the growth in the late fall.

On account of the double fruiting season of this variety, producing berries at a time when other red raspberries are not on the market, makes the St. Regis a very desirable variety to grow, both from a profit making standpoint and for home use. The berries are of good flavor; the color is a very attractive bright red. This variety is very hardy and easy to grow.

Price per dozen: 50c; 100—$2.00.

Blackberries

ELDORADO. This variety has been the best and most profitable with us. Eldorado is a good producer of large fine flavored jet black berries. Price per dozen—50c; 100—$2.50.

Grapes

CONCORD (Blue). Very productive. Bunch is large, berries sweet and juicy. Very popular throughout the country. Price: each 20c; 6 for $1.00; 12 for $1.75.
